

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1834.

Two or three hundred of this day's Post are dated wrong upon the First Page—the date being Tuesday, instead of Wednesday.

For the Boston Morning Post.

The New England Magazine.—I was pleased to see the notice, signed J., of the New England Magazine, in your paper of the 12th inst. Much justice was undoubtedly done to the worthy trilogy of Foreign Puerism, Mobs, and Atheism in New England; but your correspondent did wrong to treat them en masse, altho' they are all the offspring, or abortions, of the clique of proprietors and editors of the present N. E. Magazine. These gentlemen constitute unquestionably a dreadful literary hydra; not so much from the rapid growth of their heads when severed from the body, as from the facility with which they may be replaced.

After this compliment by way of introduction, permit me to state that it was unfair in your correspondent not to take more notice of the distinguished talents of the writer on Atheism, a gentleman who has graced the pages of the Magazine as it was, and who has finished his education in the polite circles of France and Italy. The philosophical and especially the historical acquirements of this gentleman, shine forth at the very beginning of his essay; for it is there he assures you—four times on one page—that in his memory are treasured up the recollections of the last ten years! He avows that ten years ago he knew nothing of General Jackson, (I will not repeat his endearing epithet in testimony of the faith of his hired eloquence) nothing of Mr. Van Buren, nothing of the levelling principle, (he probably uses this term in its mathematical sense) &c. And yet, in the short space of ten years, he has amassed all that stock of learning and experience, which makes him at once the competent judge of good government, and the moralist of New England. Let us see how far he is qualified for either office.

His theme is Atheism; and from the half-serious manner in which he buckles on his armour, one would at first think he is really intent upon dealing a blow at the enemy; but he brandishes his sword like Falstaff, and it is as if Doll Tear-sheet were hallooing out to him—

"I pray thee Jack, be quiet; the rascal is gone."

As early as the third page he insidiously couples the names of General Jackson and Mr. Van Buren with that of Kneeland; and whilst it is impossible for him to debate names which belong to the nation, he cannot but exalt any writer, by associating him,—were it but for one moment,—with the Chosen of the People.

But the writer on Atheism soon recollects himself, and concealing his cowardly weapon under his cowl, exclaims with the visionary bigotry of a monk:—

"Satan is no longer scared by the sound of church bells, nor is industry a safeguard against the insidious approaches of the tempter."

This is the manner in which our moralist in the N. E. Magazine exhorts to hearing the word of God at church; this is the manner in which he encourages industry and honest application at home; this is the manner in which he improves upon the old adage, "Idleness is the devil's workshop."

In this style of rhetoric our moralist proceeds, until, fraught by the weight of his own conscience, he can no longer sustain his character. Out he comes, albeit only by way of episode, in this manner:—

"The poor are taught to believe that the rich are their enemies, and hence, in part, the bitterness of spirit which is already manifested so strongly in this country between different classes;—a bitterness which will turn into wormwood and gall, unless the wealthier classes do something to neutralise it, and strive, by manifesting a real interest in the moral and social welfare of the poor, by kindness and conciliation, and by a different demeanor, to win and merit their affections. It is neither wise, nor generous, nor just, to strive in every possible way, to draw strong lines between the rich and the poor; but yet it is done; and the air, the dress, the language of the rich man, too often confirms the poor one in the idea that he is his tyrant and enemy." * * *

"See the rich man bargaining with a wood-sawyer—he draws up his figure to a full height, keeps his gloved hands behind him, talks as to an inferior, beats him down to the lowest sixpence, and grows out, perhaps, when he comes for his pay, that his work is not well done, or that his muddy feet dirty his carpet."

Alas, poor Yorick! little thou knowest the qualifications of a leader of Whig politics in this country! Thine own party will not thank thee for thy sincerity. Thou hadst better study a few years with some celebrated lawyer, where thou mightest have a chance of learning how dangerous it is to prove more than is wanted.

Again he says—and who would disbelieve a traveller!—"In Europe the castes have been established since the feudal age. The distinction between the classes is perfectly well defined; the working-man believes it impossible for him to attain a place in the ranks above him, and is content to live and die as did all his fathers before him. But here, the people, though not well enlightened, know something of their rights; and unless they are granted to them fully and freely, they will take them, and a great deal more too."

Here he shows us the secret yearning of his heart, and there we see the hopeless wish to establish in this country that happy state of society, in which the poor workmen thinks it impossible for him to attain a place in the ranks above him—where he is content to live and die as his father did. In this country he allows, the people know a little of their rights, and that little he thinks dangerous.

Our moralist then describes the scenes which occur at the "Temple of Reason" with the minuteness and accuracy of an eye witness—he assures us that he has reason to believe that they are made use of as opportunities for intrigue and agitation—and even promises a demonstration of the fact in a future number. Now, I do not question the truth of either of these statements; but far be it from me to follow our moralist into the fifty avenues of vice and corruption. I will not prostitute my pen by the recital of things at which humanity blushes; I would not thus pollute the pages of a newspaper, much less those of a periodical dedicated (as it ought to be) exclusively to literature.

The weakest point which the writer on Atheism makes, is decidedly this—

"The general tenor is to ridicule the Christian religion, to persuade the congregation that there is no God. I, on the other hand, preach the doctrines of the French infidels, but not with the dazzling ingenuity of a Voltaire, or the subtle logic of the Encyclopedists; not by fair argument, and from established premises, but by bold assertion, impudent assumption, unblushing falsehood, coarse ridicule, and profane jest."

Here our moralist is evidently less shocked with the tenor of infidelity, than with the gross manner in which, he says, Kneeland and his disciples advocate it. The aristocratic ears of our Whig writer, accustomed as they are to the ton of European fashions, revolt against the want of refinement in the Boston avowed infidels. He willingly bestows the meed of praise on the dazzling ingenuity of Voltaire and the Encyclopedists, and even concedes to them the right of advocating infidelity by fair argument and from established premises. Does he, with such reasoning as this, expect to conquer Satan, or does he think "this poor show doth better: this does infer the zeal I had to meet him." But what is all this, compared with the following sentence:—

"Is our language strong?—so are our feelings—so ought to be the feelings of every man who has the good, not of his church, not of his religion, but of society, and of the human race at heart."

Is it not evident that our moralist, fearing that his party might take him for a religious zealot, guards against it, by exclaiming, that it is not the good of his church, not of his religion, but of society, (of his party) which he has at heart. He does not mean to cast out devils by the Lord—he does it by the power of Beelzebub.

At the very end of his elegant production, he assures us that "immoralities threaten to pollute all the under currents of society—that they undermine all the foundations of the social fabric, and scatter its blackened fragments to the four winds of heaven." Now this is a most beautiful figure of speech, and comes in by way of a flourish, with which our moralist makes his exit.—But we cannot agree with him in the belief that corruptions are polluting only the lower classes of society—we think some of the upper members are equally immoral, arrogant, selfish and corrupt—and even more so than the laborers whom they employ. The first converts to Christianity were not from among the wealthy, and the Pharisees were never converted.

And now I cannot take leave of our moralist without exhorting him, by all that is "dear to him," by his love of reputation, by his strife for popularity, by the penny which the present proprietors of the N. E. Magazine will inevitably lose if no better articles are furnished him, by the clean paper which will be wasted to no purpose, to desist from writing politico-religious essays. The cause of Infidelity and Atheism ought not to receive support, as it certainly will, from such lukewarm defenders of religion, who would in vain attempt to make the sacred cause of God subservient to the foul purposes of party politics.

C. W.

Our next Legislature will elect a Senator to Congress in place of Mr. Silsbee, whose term will expire on the 4th of March next. Levi Lincoln has his eye and his heart upon the office.—J. Q. Adams thinks he would like to get into his old Senatorial shoes once more—several others have been named for the place—Alexander Everett, (don't be frightened, Mr. Atlas,) Richard Fletcher, Henry Lee, and I. C. Bates—but who the successful candidate will be, it cannot now be told—this, however, is certain—should Levi miss the mark he would feel as small in his own estimation as he already, &c. &c.

The Agitators in the Senate are giving vent to their spleen and disappointment, by attempting to injure the feelings of such men as Messrs HILL and SHEPHERD—but is beyond their power—the conduct of these two able and honest Senators receives the approbation of their country, while those who assail them are looked upon as the enemies of the people, and the betrayers of the trusts confided to them—the panders of corruption, the victims of defeated ambition.

On the third day came a thaw.—On Sunday it was pretty considerable cold—the wind blew and the snow fell all day, but not enough to make sleighing—Monday was the coldest day that we have had, a man told us, for eight or nine years—Mercury fell in some towns about Boston to 10, and in the city to 5, degrees below Zero—so says the Transcript—but on Tuesday came a thaw, and warmed the elements into good humor again.

Bishop White has been seriously indisposed at Philadelphia—he is recovering.

Mr. Buchanan is confined to his room by indisposition at his residence in Pennsylvania. We hope he will soon be able to take his seat in the Senate, as we are sure he will fill it with dignity and honor.

This evening, Miss Pelby will take a benefit at the Warren, on which occasion a new piece written by Mrs. Asbury, and another one by Mr. Blake, will be presented, together with Jane Shore—the strength of the bill, and the distinguished talents of Miss P. will attract a full house, without doubt. The succession of new pieces offered to the public at this theatre is unprecedented—and what is yet more remarkable, they are all written by members of the company. The two pieces rendered by Mr. Hill, The Shoemaker of Toulouse, and Lucrezia Borgia, are unsurpassed in interest and dramatic effect by any modern play. Mr. Blake's Jack Downing, and the Turned Head are very popular, and so are several of Mr. Jones's and Mrs. Asbury's productions. Their authors deserve to be liberally rewarded, and we have no doubt that Mr. Pelby's generosity, and knowledge of the great service these writers have been to his establishment, has induced him to offer them such encouragement as will secure to him a continuance of their valuable aid.

The "Stonington Cannon" asks us to exchange shots with him—we can't do it unless he pays the expense of the powder—viz: $4—the difference in our pieces.

The Congressional Elections.—Mr. Hoar (Swig) is elected in the Fourth District—in the Tenth no choice has been effected. Baylies has 2475, Borden 2566—132 scattering.

Letters from New-Orleans, of November 29, mention the arrival of the Nashville; the Rev. Mr. Parker was landed about twelve miles below the city, and a carriage had been sent for him.

The Philadelphia Gazette says—"We understand that a forged check was yesterday presented and paid at the Philadelphia Bank for $2000."

SENTENCE OF THE SPANISH PIRATES

[U. S. District Court, Tuesday, Dec 16, 1834.]

The Court met at 10 o'clock this morning, when Judge STORY delivered an opinion, at great length, against the power of the Circuit Court to grant a new trial, in a capital case; Judge S. considered such a power expressly denied by the clause in one of the amendments to the Constitution, declaring, that no person shall, for the same offence, be put twice in jeopardy of life or limb, which is but a recognition of the long established principle of the common law, that no man's life shall be more than once put in jeopardy for the same offence—a maxim embedded in the very elements of the common law. His honor was of opinion, that if the power existed at all, it must apply as well to trials in which the parties were acquitted, as in those in which parties were convicted. The motion for a new trial was accordingly overruled, as was also the motion in arrest of judgment, the several specifications in support of which were examined and pronounced insufficient. Judge Davis having delivered a short opinion, agreeing with Judge Story's, Andrew Dunlap, Esq., the District Attorney, arose and made the following motion for the delivery of the judgment:—

May it please your Honors.—Pedro Gibert, Bernardo de Soto, Francisco Ruiz, Manuel Boyga, Manuel Castillo, Angel Garcia, and Juan Montenegro, otherwise called Jose Bazilio De Castro, the prisoners at the bar, have been at the present term of this Court indicted by the Grand Jury of this District, for a felonious and piratical robbery of twenty thousand dollars, on board of a vessel of the United States, perpetrated on the high sea, and within the Admiralty jurisdiction of the U. States. On the twenty third day of October, they were placed at the bar, informed of the indictment which had been found and returned against them and furnished with copies, and with translations of the same into the Spanish language, the language of the prisoners. Counsel, learned in the law, of their own selection from the bar of this Court were assigned in their defence. On the twenty seventh of October, they were again put to the bar, and arraigned upon this indictment, to which they severally pleaded not guilty. On the twenty eighth day of October, a list of the traverse jurors summoned to this court, was delivered to each of the prisoners. On the eleventh day of November, they were again set to the bar and put upon their trial, having been first informed by the Court of their right of challenge to the jurors, and a jury was duly empanelled for their trial; all the witnesses subject to the process of the Court whom the prisoners desired to have summoned were summoned in their behalf, by the process of the Government. They were defended with fidelity, eloquence and learning, by their Counsel, and the Jury after a patient investigation, which occupied fifteen days, returned their verdict, which the Court has recorded, that each of these prisoners is guilty. Motions for a new trial, and in arrest of judgment have been filed and learnedly argued by their Counsel. These motions the Court has considered and overruled. It therefore becomes my duty to move that judgment be rendered on this verdict, and that the sentence which the law awards against each of these prisoners at the bar be now pronounced.

The prisoners were then informed, through Mr. Badlam, the interpreter, that the Court had delivered an opinion overruling the motions for a new trial, and in arrest of judgment, and that they were at liberty to state any reason, that they might have, why sentence should not be pronounced against them. All the prisoners, except Ruiz, who required time, then handed to their counsel statements in writing, averring their innocence and the falsehood of Perez. Charges of a heinous character are confidently advanced in all their statements, against Capt. Trotter of the British man-of-war brig Curlew. They all charge Capt. Trotter with having used every imaginable artifice, together with promises and threats to induce the crew of the Pinda to acknowledge that they had robbed the Mexican.

Capt. Gibert, in his statement, in which he says he sailed from Havana, on the 21st of August, and arrived at Cape Mount, in 37 days; that on the 4th of June, while the Pinda was laying in the river Nazareth, with only a part of her sick crew on board, three boats, with white men armed, and a canoe with Kroomen, came round the point, and immediately opened a brisk fire on the Pinda, whose ineffective crew, having no officer to direct them, abandoned her; he states that he was prevented from claiming his vessel, by the pride of the negro King, who proposed, for the honor of his nation, to indemnify him, for the loss he had sustained within his sovereignty; and the more effectually to prevent the making of a demand, he caused Capt. Gibert to be removed, under a guard, into the woods in rear of the own.

After denouncing Perez, whom he calls Bazela, Capt. Gibert states that Delgado, before he cut his throat, avowed his determination to commit suicide, because his extorted and false confessions had involved the lives of his companions. He also states that Capt. Trotter offered him a passage to Havana, and $1000, if he would make certain the robbery of the Mexican. Capt. G. even states, that the boatswain was poisoned at Fernando Po, for denying the robbery—he exclaimed just before his death—"The knaves have given me poison—my entrails are burning," soon after which he expired, foaming at the mouth. The motive assigned by all the prisoners for Capt. Trotter's alleged corruption, is his liability, in damages, for the Pinda and her cargo.

In a supplementary statement, which was introduced after the other prisoners had been heard, Captain Gibert says, that, while on board of the Savage, at Salem, and in their prison, the door was opened, and some people entered, and after examining them, went out, and one, whom he since recognizes to be the Mexican's mate, remarked "know nobody here;" that after they went away, the corporal and sentinel, who spoke a little Spanish, said the people who had just been in belonged to the Mexican, and had said they knew none of us. Capt. Gibert thinks that some of the Salem people who were standing by at the time must have heard the remark, and he calls upon them to come forward.

Bernardo de Soto, the mate, called the whole universe to witness his innocence, and stated that torture was applied to make some of the crew of the Pinda confess the robbery of the Mexican.

Manuel Boyga said, in his statement, that they threatened to shoot him if he did not criminate his companions.

Manuel Castillo stated, that after the arrival of the Curlew at Cannabar, they had Perez ashore five days, instructing him from an American Gazette—that he was free, and at the governor's house, where they were employed the five days in seducing him. About a month afterwards they gave a drink to the boatswain, who was well, but soon took raving, and when he was dying, Perez went to his bed and beseeched him to forgive him for the false declarations he had made against him and the others; that Capt. Trotter had told him, if he did not make the declaration he should be shot. Perez is a base and wicked villain, and an enemy to the Spaniards.

Angel Garcia made a statement very similar to Castillo's, and called Capt. Trotter a villain and seducer, and avers that he seduced Perez.

Juan Montenegro also handed in a similar statement, with equally solemn assertions of innocence.

The reading of the written statements was concluded about 5 o'clock, when the following sentence, translated to the prisoners, by Mr. Badlam, was pronounced by STORY, J.—Pedro Gibert, Bernardo de Soto, Francisco Ruiz, Manuel Boyga, Manuel Castillo, Angel Garcia, and Juan Montenegro—prisoners at the bar—the motion made by your counsel for a new trial, and in arrest of judgment, having been overruled by the court, and all other matters being disposed of, it is now my painful duty to pronounce the sentence of the law upon each of you, for the crime whereof you severally stand convicted. I shall do this in as brief terms as possible, being conscious of the difficulty of addressing you through the medium of an interpreter.

It is considered by the Court, that the said Pedro Gibert, Bernardo de Soto, Francisco Ruiz, Manuel Boyga, Manuel Castillo, Angel Garcia, and Juan Montenegro, otherwise called Jose Bazilio De Castro—be, and they are hereby severally deemed, taken and adjudged to be pirates and felons; and that they and each of them be hanged by the neck, until they are severally dead. And the Marshal of this District of Massachusetts, or his deputy, do, on peril of what may befall thereon, cause execution to be done in the premises aforesaid, upon them, and each of them severally, on the eleventh day of March next ensuing, between the hours of nine o'clock, in the forenoon, and twelve o'clock at noon of the same day, and that they, the said Pedro Gibert, &c. be now taken from hence to the goal in Boston in the district aforesaid, from whence they came, there, or in some other safe and convenient goal within the district aforesaid, they and each of them to be closely kept until the day of execution, and from thence they and each of them to be taken on the day appointed for execution as aforesaid, to the place there to be hanged as aforesaid, until they are severally dead. And it is further ordered by the Court, that the Clerk of this Court to issue a warrant in due form of law to the Marshal of this district, or his deputy, to carry judgment into full effect.

I earnestly recommend to each of you to employ the intermediate period in sober reflections upon your past life and conduct, and by prayers and penitence, and religious exercises, to seek the favor and forgiveness of Almighty God, for any sins and crimes which you may have committed; and for this purpose, I earnestly recommend to you and each of you, to seek the aid and assistance of the ministers of our holy religion, of the denomination to which you severally belong. And in bidding you, so far as I can presume to know, an eternal farewell, I offer up my earnest prayers, that Almighty God may in his infinite goodness have mercy on your souls.

The distant period appointed for the execution of the prisoners, was assigned by Judge Story, in order to enable them to procure evidence from the Havana and England, favorable to their case, if any in fact exists, to be laid before the President of the United States, with whom alone rests the power to stay further proceedings.

Municipal.—At a meeting of the Mayor and Aldermen on Monday.—The committee on the Jail and the Houses of Correction, Industry and Reformation made a report on the condition of said houses, which was read and ordered to be printed. Petition of Engine Company No 7, for a new engine, referred. The committee on the Fire Department, to whom was referred the petition of firemen of Ward No 8, for new caps, reported that a new set be provided—read and accepted.

The Board concurred with the Common Council in the order appropriating $2500 for expenses already incurred in grading streets at South Boston.

The following officers of the Fire Department were appointed, viz: Luther W. Dunbar, Foreman, Augustus Denton, 1st Assistant Foreman, James S. Claflin, 2d Assistant Foreman, and William H. Otis, Clerk, of Engine Company No 6.

Natchez, Nov. 21.—Dreadful Steamboat Accident.—One of the boilers of the steamboat Carrollton collapsed about 9 o'clock this morning, just as she was leaving the landing. All aft of the boiler was blown overboard. The chambermaid and steward are both missing—no doubt that both were blown over. Three persons are very badly scalded, and three slightly.—The damage to the boat is slight. We were unable to obtain the names of the individuals scalded and missing, in consequence of the absence of the clerk. They were all deck hands.

Daring Robbery.—The Baltimore Republican of Saturday, says.—On Thursday night last, between 9 and 10 o'clock, a gentleman, by the name of T. Locknare, from Petersburg, Va., while passing into Lombard from Light street, was knocked down by four ruffians, and robbed of $3,500. Before assistance could be had, the robbers had rifled his pockets and made off with their booty. Mr. L. had just arrived in this city, and it is probable that it was known to the robbers that he had money about him.

Virginia Legislature.—On Tuesday the 9th, a resolution was adopted in the house of delegates, that they proceed on the 12th instant to the choice of a Senator in Congress. On Wednesday last the resolution was taken up in the Senate and so amended as to appoint the 12th of February as the day for the election. A resolution was then adopted to take a recess with the consent of the house of delegates from Saturday the 13th to the 20th.—N. Y. Times.

The following is an extract of a letter from Wilmington, N. C. under date of Nov. 27th:—"There is not a vessel in port for freight, and our wharves are groaning with produce. Vessels would command a good freight readily, say 50 cents per barrel, and one half cent per pound for cotton to New York, and cargoes can also be had for Boston."

Missouri.—We learn from Missouri that all the proposed amendments to the State Constitution, except the 7th, 11th, and 12th, have been rejected by the Legislature. The 7th turns out the Circuit Judges on the first of January, 1836. The 11th abolishes the mode of appointment and tenure of office of the Clerks of Courts—and the 12th provides for their election by the people.

The surviving passengers and seamen of the bark Cavalier, Captain Howes, wrecked on the coast of Cuba 4th of November, arrived at Mobile on the 29th ult.—The captain and all the crew, except two, were lost.—In all there were 29 lost, and 7 saved, including 5 passengers.

The official returns for Governor in Ohio, as canvassed in Convention of the Legislature on the 15th instant, give Lucas 70,738 votes; Findlay 67,414. Lucas's majority 3,324—scattering 38.

A London paper states that the first edition of 10,000 copies of Bulwer's "Last days of Pompeii," was sold on the day of publication.

Attorney General of Virginia.—We learn that Mr. BAXTER has been elected Attorney General of Virginia. The vote was, for Baxter 81—Patton 77.—U. S. Telegraph.

REVIEW OF THE BOSTON MARKET

FOR THE WEEK ENDING TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16.

ASHES.—The market continues to sustain the advance noticed in former reviews, and further sales of peruvian have been made at $120 per ton—holders anticipate higher prices, and dealers have been several parcels taken at 88 a $90 per ton, but the supplies are very limited.

CANDLES.—The business done in sperm has been for foreign shipment, at 23c per lb, and moulds small sales at 10c per lb.

OLIVE OIL.—But little doing except to supply the usual demand for the trade—Winter Sperm at $1 per gal—Olive 1.05—and Southern Lined $1 per gal—the supplies of olive in first hands are very limited.

PLASTER PARIS.—Sale 2 a 300 tons at reported prices.

PROVISIONS.—More firmness has been manifested by the principal packers, and by some higher prices than we quote are required—the sales consist of Mess, 94 a $10, and No 1, 8 1/2 a $9 per bbl—sales Lard 9 a 9 1/2c per lb—and moderate sales Pork at quotations.

RICE.—There has been a fair demand both for exportation and home consumption—and sales consist of 3 a 400 casks at 3 1/2 a 3 3/4 per lb, on 4 and 6 mo—cr.

RYE.—Sales of this article have been very circumscribed at our quotations.

SALT.—No change exists in the market on former prices—last sale of St. Ubes at 2.34, on 6 mo—and Liverpool at 2 1/2, cash—and fine bag do, 1.62 a 1.60 c.

SUGARS.—The market has been fully sustained, and prices, principally taken from first hands, on our former report, are, and consist of 300 boxes, 8 1/2 a 8 3/4, and 100 do, 8 1/2 a 8 3/4—white do within the quoted rates, and a few hds Muscovado at 18 1/2 a 19c per lb, 6 mos c.

WOOD.—Sales of St. Domingo logwood, 18 a $19 per ton—150 tons Maricao-bu flutic at $12 per ton, and a few tons of same importation at 14 a $15 per ton—the article is dull at the advance required.

WOOL.—There has been considerable sales of fleeces, amounting to about 60,000 pounds, and prices are more fully supported.

B. B. FUSILIERS.—NOTICE.—ACTIVE AND HONORARY MEMBERS—you are requested to meet at CONCERT HALL, THIS EVENING, precisely at 7 o'clock, on business of importance.

dec 17 N. LINCOLN, Jr. Clerk.
